COL. C. H. T. COLLIS MEMORIAL IN NATIONAL CEMETERY DEDICATED ON SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Large Number of His Regiment
Present—Camp Fire on Saturday Night.

The Memorial to Col. C. H. T. Collis, a picture of which is given above, was dedicated in the National Cemetery on Sunday afternoon. A very large crowd witnessed the ceremonies made up of a party from Philadelphia numbering 116 and many of our own citizens.

Gettysburg always entertained a warm regard for Col. Collis. The Collis Zouaves were on the front line in the fight at the Peach Orchard and lost half their men while holding that position and being driven back. Col. Collis was devoted to the Red Diamond of the Third Brigade and Gettysburg and appreciating the beauty of the place built his home, Red Patch, on Seminary Ridge. When he died he asked to be buried in National Cemetery looking toward his Red Patch emblematic of the corps badge he followed and today his bronze bust looks out toward the same point.

The Association of survivors of the 114th Pa. the Collis Zouaves arrived Saturday evening. Veterans, their wives, daughters, sons and grandchildren. About 5 o'clock they gathered in the court house for a camp fire. They were welcomed with an address by Rev. E. H. True, then Col. Edward R. Bowen who commanded them at the battle of Gettysburg made a short address giving a history of the regiment. He told how Col. Collis had first recruited a company as part of the first 90 days men called for. It was Col. Collis who adopted for his company the French Zouave uniform. The company re-enlisted and in 1862 Collis was given authority to recruit a regiment of Zouaves and this was accomplished in a very short time. The first fight of the regiment was at Fredericksburg where upon order to save a battery the Confederates had about surrounded. Col. Collis and his Zouaves dashed valiantly to the accomplishment of their commission. Congress awarded Col. Collis Medal of Honor for bravery at Fredericksburg. The regiment was in the thick of it at Chancellorsville. Next came Gettysburg, where half the regiment was sacrificed in their effort to hold position at Sherfy house. Later the regiment was detailed to be the guard of the General in command of the Army of the Potomac, fought in the Wilderness and other battles and were at Appomattox at the surrender.

After songs and a jolly good time the camp fire concluded. Sunday morning was spent by the visitors on the battlefield. The dedication services came off in National Cemetery Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Chaplin Givin opened the services with prayer. Judge W. M. Ashman of Philadelphia, in his address gave a sketch of the life of Col. Collis as soldier, lawyer and administrative officer in New York City and that it was his indomitable perseverance, high ideals and personal magnetism that had made his life a successful one. Col. Bowen then briefly detailed the story of the erection of the memorial by the boys of 114th Pa. Regt. and presented it to the association. F. H. Patrick receiving it turned it over to the care of the government and Calvin Hamilton, Superintendent of cemetery, received it, speaking of the sacred trust in preserving these memorials of soldier heroes. The services closed with benediction by Rev. E. H. True. Lloyd Collis and Charles E. T. Collis, sons of the Col. Collis were present, also a grandson.

SEWER COMPLETED.

Work Inspected, Approved and Settlement Agreed Upon.

Gettysburg has been made an ideal residence town by the completion of a public sewer which is working perfectly and at a cost of about $30,000.

The work of the contractors, Fehr & O'Rourke, has been completed. On last Friday the engineer, Mason D. Pratt, Mr. O'Rourke of the contractors, and the Sewer Committee, met to inspect the completed sewer. The entire system was traversed. Every man-hole was opened and at every point everything was found in perfect condition with drainage water passing freely on its way to septic tank.

According to contract 15 per cent. of the work done had been kept back each month until the sewer had been completed and approved. Engineer Pratt, when he had finished his inspection, pronounced the work done and sewer built according to contract and that contractors were entitled to the 15 per cent. which had been withheld.

The contract called for contractors making repairs to streets dug up for six months after work was completed and a small percentage of contract price could have been withheld for this purpose. The contractor asked to be relieved of this part of the contract upon payment of a certain specified sum.

The Sewer Committee asked him for the three or four car loads of crushed stone on the ground here and ten additional car loads. He refused to accede to this for some time thinking he was being asked too much but finally gave in. The town by this settlement will have the greater part of stone needed to put streets in first-class condition.

The Sewer Committee of the Town Council under instructions given will complete some small branches of sewer. They were at work last week in extending the first ward sewer to top of Baltimore Hill to give the residents of that portion of the town sewer accommodations as requested. Other portions of town will be dealt with similarly and it is hoped to give every citizen sewer conveniences. It is expected to get these branches finished at a cost of not over $2,000. The completed sewer today measures over 7 miles and has cost about $30,000.

Before the inspection began last week the man-holes were loosened up all over the town. Someone started the rumor that a pig had got in sewer for which they were searching. The pig went down the sewer growing until it was so big that it had closed the sewer. The tale was swallowed and there were those who went around hunting for information about that pig in the sewer.

A Professional Opinion.

Mr. Harry Pittman, the pianist with the Pittman Concert Company, says: "The Weaver Piano cannot be excelled for brilliancy of tone coupled with a fine action and beautiful finish." It is a piano that he takes great pleasure in recommending. The piano is better than most others, simply because it is made better. The workmanship is superior and each piece of material that enters into the construction is the finest obtainable. Mechanical genius, enhanced by the finest intellects and all directed by a good conscience are the elements which have made the Weaver Piano superior to others. Send for catalogue.

COURT HOUSE ADDITION

ARCHITECTS HAVE SUBMITTED
PLANS COVERING NEEDS

When Plans Have Been Approved
by Court Bids for Construction
Will be Advertised.

Hamme and Leber, Architects of York were given the work by the County Commissioners of preparing plans for the addition to the Court House. They have submitted plans which provide for the needs as they have been made known by various officials of the county.

The plans call for an addition covering the entire space in rear of the Court House, from Middle street to the Culp lot and back to the alley and a number of alterations in the present building. The exterior of the present building will not be changed in any way and the addition is proposed to follow the lines of the present structure. To extend building to alley it was thought would give a length to building so that proportions might be lost sight of, but to add an end so as to make a T shaped building it was decided would preserve the present solid and substantial proportions.

An entrance would be provided from Middle Street. In the cellar of the new building would be a vault, a public toilet room and a second toilet room for Court House officials.

On the first floor the Prothonotary would be given the entire vault now occupied by his office and County Treasurer.

The Sheriff would be given the present room of the County Treasurer and a small vault added and with access through vault to adjoining vault and Prothonotary's office.

The present commissioners office would be converted into a District Attorney's office with a private room at the end. This would give the public the convenience of easily reaching the District Attorney during court week. It is probable the office would be more used by that official during Court week than at any other time. The room would comply with the law compelling county commissioners to furnish such room.

On the other side of hall the architects' plans call for a vault adjoining the present vault used by Clerk of Court and Register and Recorder. With twin vaults on that side the clerk would occupy the present vault and the Register and Recorder the new one.

To give the Register and Recorder ample office rooms the plans call for throwing about half of the Arbitration Room to the Register's office.

The remainder of the Arbitration Room and the present office of the Superintendent of Schools is thrown together for a new Arbitration room.

The first floor of the addition contains four rooms, the one on Middle Street, for the County Commissioners, next a vault, then Co. Treasurer's office and County Superintendent's office.

At the rear of the present hall there would be an open stairway to second story, where the space is divided into Law Library room, Grand Jury room, Petit Jury room, Judges' chamber, male witness room, female witness room and toilet rooms.

The plans have been drawn up in accordance with instructions of county commissioners and court. The plans as prepared were carefully considered by the Commissioners at their meeting yesterday and practically approved.

The next step will be to submit plans to the court. The architects have given no detailed estimate of cost but in a general way stated that the addition and changes ought to be made for $10,000. This of course does not include furnishings that will be needed.

After plans have been approved by the court the next step will be the advertising for bids. The actual contracting for the erection cannot likely occur until sometime in June.

With The Fans.

The College Base ball team, played in hard luck last Friday against Bucknell. There were a number of errors. The visitors found Kauffman's curves a number of times, bouncing hits and making 7 runs. The home team hit Bucknell's pitcher but could not score saving themselves from a shut out in last inning with a single run.

The game came near ending in a rough and tumble fight. The short stop of Bucknell without any provocation applied an epithet to catcher of home team, who resented it in a flash by giving him a deserved thumping. Demand was made that the short stop should be thrown out of game. The gentlemanly manager of Bucknell compelled the short stop to apologize and game then proceeded.

The College team goes to Emmitsburg to-day to play Mt. St. Mary's team. The next game scheduled at home is the return game with Mt. St. Mary's on Wednesday of next week, May 23.

Eddie Plank pitched last week in game in which Beaneaters were defeated by score of 9 to 6.

Awful Discharge From Eyes and Nose—Would Have Left Scars Except for Cuticura—Under Specialists' Care for Months—Grateful for Benefit Her Little Boy Received and

STRONGLY RECOMMENDS CUTICURA REMEDIES

"I used the Cuticura Remedies eight years ago for my little boy who had ulcers in the eyes, which resulted from vaccination. His face and nose were in a bad state also. At one time we thought he would lose his sight forever, and at that time he was in the hospital for seven or eight months and under specialists. The discharges from the eyes and nose were bad and would have left scars, I feel sure, had it not been for the free use of the Cuticura Remedies. But through it all we used the Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Resolvent, and lots of it, and I feel grateful for the benefit he received from them. The Cuticura Resolvent seemed to send the trouble out, the Ointment healed it outwardly, and the Soap cleansed and healed both. He is entirely cured now; but since then I have bought the Cuticura Resolvent to cleanse and purify the blood, and the Soap I cannot speak too highly of as a cleansing and medicinal beautifier. I can truthfully say the Cuticura Remedies are all they are claimed to be."

In the forty odd years of Dr. Pierce's experience as chief consulting physician to the Hotel and Sanitary Institute in Buffalo, N. Y., he has treated more than half a million people, with a record of ninety-eight cures in every hundred.

The theory held by Dr. Pierce is that the stomach is the chief breeding place of disease, is abundantly borne out by the success of his treatment which is addressed primarily to the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition.

No other medicine acts so powerfully and as perfectly on the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Men and women afflicted with shortness of breath, heart disease, suffocation, dizziness, spots before the eyes, liver pains, and similar ailments have been permanently and perfectly cured by the use of "Golden Medical Discovery."

Mrs. Lavilla Bonine, Curator Natural History Society, of 46 Lawrence Street, West Lansing, Mich., writes: "I suffered with chronic dyspepsia for nearly seven years and this caused me to grow very thin and at the same time my blood became poor and I was so nervous and unstrung that I was unfit to attend to my daily duties. Heart was also affected and fluttered at the least excitement. I spent a lot of money doctoring and found no relief, until I took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It certainly is a wonderful medicine. It toned up my stomach and I began to have splendid appetite and no trouble with my digestion, and I began to pick up and get strong; soon new, rich blood flowed in my veins, and I once more felt the beauty and joy of life. I have now enjoyed a perfect health for a year, thanks to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery."

LIFE ON TORPEDO BOATS.

Much Distress in Hot, Cramped Quarters in a Heavy Sea.

Each of the torpedo craft carries a crew of from sixty to seventy men, and when one considers the size of the space in which it is necessary for these men to move about in operating the powerful yet intricate machinery and find sleeping space also one must marvel at the life aboard a vessel of this class.

To live in quarters the size of an ordinary dry goods box is not the life that the everyday American cares to essay. To endure such life for hours at a stretch, without sleep or food, and to stand exposed in all climates—such is life aboard a torpedo craft for officers and men alike.

There is no discrimination. That is why one sees beardless faces and slender figures behind the conning towers when these long, three and four stacked tiers run into port for coal and water at frequent intervals, which is necessary on account of their limited space for carrying these necessities. In the comparatively smooth waters of Norfolk harbor the torpedo boats look very much like the motor racers in disguise, but they are far from being the pleasure craft that the auto boats are, and they go where the Lieutenant of a motor boat would not dare to venture.

The ocean is the place to see the torpedo boat under way, and then life on board the craft can be seen in its true light. Striking their bows into the long, green swells, the spray flying above the signal staffs forward and the solid green water washing the low decks continually, is but one picture of life on the rolling deep in a mere shell of a boat.

In the harbor and when at sea in fair weather the torpedo boats run with the hatches open, the commanding officer stands on watch clear of the forward conning tower and the crew lounge on deck, but when the little craft begins to roll and plunge in the seaway the hatches are closed, and, barring the stumpy smokestacks, the vessels resemble baby whales at play. It is then that the crew suffers most while at sea. All must remain below decks or place themselves in jeopardy. To venture above while the vessel is plunging about the sea with decks awash would be extremely hazardous.

Sometimes the steward will essay to climb along the deck from the stern to the forward hatch with a smoking fish clasp tightly in his hands. He is in a race with the seas. If he reaches his destination forward he is lucky. If the seas get there first the fishes get the food.

In the event of the seas overtaking him, then he has to scramble back to the galley and await another chance. This is an amusing incident of life aboard, to watch the steward essay the trip in rough weather.

Intense heat prevails below decks when the craft is under way with hatches closed, and the humidity is one of the inconveniences to which the crew of a torpedo boat is subjected and is one of the most objectionable features of life aboard the torpedo craft, as the heat is oppressive and fearful at times, with all four boilers under full draft and ponderous engines throbbing and pulsating at full speed of perhaps twenty-five to thirty knots.—Norfolk Landmark.

Benbow and His Messmate.

When the brave Admiral Benbow was a common sailor his messmate, who was stationed with him at the same gun, lost his leg by a cannon shot. The poor fellow called to his friend Benbow, who took him upon his shoulder and descended with him to the cockpit, but it happened that just as the poor fellow's head came upon a level with the deck another ball carried that off also. Benbow, however, knew nothing of the matter and carried the body down to the surgeon, calling out to the latter that he had brought a patient, desiring some one to bear a hand. The surgeon turned about and exclaimed:

There is to-day a crying need of a reformation in the treatment of the body. The basis of this reformation is to be found in the thesis of Dr. R. V. Pierce: "Diseases which originate in the stomach must be cured through the stomach."

In the forty odd years of Dr. Pierce's experience as chief consulting physician to the Hotel and Sanitary Institute in Buffalo, N. Y., he has treated more than half a million people, with a record of ninety-eight cures in every hundred. The theory held by Dr. Pierce is that the stomach is the chief breeding place of disease, is abundantly borne out by the success of his treatment which is addressed primarily to the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. "Why, what do you do here with a man who has lost his head?"

"Lost his head?" says Benbow. "A lying scoundrel! He told me it was his leg, but I never believed what he said in my life without being sorry for it afterward."

Why He Was Embarrassed.

An attractive and altogether "bonny" young business woman came to Philadelphia with a large stock of proprietary and a small amount of practical knowledge of the world to carve out her fortune after passing her girlhood days in Edinburgh and London. Although without any undue amount of self-consciousness or egotism, she is sometimes annoyed by the very evident admiration she attracts in public places. The other day while dining in a restaurant she fancied that the man opposite was preparing to speak to her, as he glanced her way and seemed to be making up his mind to open a conversation. The young woman assumed a most frigid air and looked as unapproachable as the arctic pole. The man as he left the table made one more half-hearted attempt to speak, blushed red to his ears, then hurried away. When the young woman finished her luncheon and called for her check the waitress amazed her by exclaiming: "Why, I thought you were with that gentleman. I put your check and his together." The bill had manfully been settled.—Philadelphia Record.

Keep the Balance Up.

It has been truthfully said that any disturbance of the even balance of the health causes serious trouble. Nobody can be too careful to keep this balance up. When people begin to lose appetite, or to get tired easily, the least imprudence brings on sickness, weakness, or debility. The system needs a tonic, craves it, and should not be denied it; and the best tonic of which we have any knowledge is Hood's Sarsaparilla. What this medicine has done in keeping healthy people healthy, in keeping up the even balance of health, gives it the same distinction as a preventative that it enjoys as a cure. Its early use has illustrated the wisdom of the old saying that a stitch in time saves nine. Take Hood's for appetite, strength, and endurance.

A Remarkable Bridge.

Among the many odd nooks and corners and crannies of the wild Emerald Isle is Carrick-a-rede, on the Great Northern railroad of Ireland. It is an isolated rock, separated from the mainland by a chasm sixty feet wide and more than eighty feet deep, and it is at this place that the salmon are intercepted in their retreat to the rivers. A rude bridge of ropes is thrown across, which remains during the fishing season, and this bridge, which is protected by a single rope rail, swings about in the most uncomfortable manner, often rendering it a dangerous feat in stormy weather save to the natives, who cross it with the utmost indifference. The name is derived from "Carrick-a-rand" (the rock in the road) on account of the intercepting of the salmon. Near by on the west side of the island is a cavern in which have been found the bones of horse, ox, deer, sheep, goat, badger, otter, water rat and of several kinds of birds.

Two Odd Volumes.

The book done by a French monk who instead of writing the words cut the letters from the vellum page and formed a sort of stencil has its opposite in a Swedish translation of the four gospels, which was done in gold and silver leaf. The initial letters are cut from thin sheets of beaten gold done in delicate tracery, while the body of the text is of heavy silver. The foil is cemented to the parchment page with an adhesive which in spite of the undoubted antiquity of the book has not lost its powers. Most freak books were evidently done to perpetuate the name of the ingenious owner, but this carries absolutely no information as to its maker.

A more modern freak is the output of a Lyons silk weaving firm and is a prayer book in which the letters are woven into the silk. But one copy was made of the book, and this is in the government library at Paris.

RECORD OF THE WEATHER

FOR WINTER OF 1905-06—DEGREES OF COLD AND SNOW.

Eleven Degrees Below Zero Was the Coldest Weather and Fifteen Snows Fell.

The following is a correct record of the weather for the winter of 1905, '06; including the degrees of temperature, the number of snows, their depth and the dates on which they fell. The degrees of temperature were taken from a tested thermometer which was badly exposed without any shelter or protection.

The first cold weather of the winter occurred on Dec. 18th, several days after the first snow fell, the thermometer registered 5 degrees below zero at 6 a. m., Jan. 9th 15 degrees above zero at 7 a. m., the warmest weather of the winter occurred between Jan. 20th and 24th, Jan. 20th 65 degrees above zero, Jan. 21st 72 degrees in the sun, 60 degrees in the shade, Jan. 22nd 63 degrees above, Jan. 23rd 55 degrees above at 8 a. m., 65 degrees at noon, this was the warmest weather recorded for the winter season for a number of years, Jan. 24th, 23 degrees above zero at 7 a. m., Feb. 2nd Ground Hog day, clear and cold, zero at 7 a. m., Feb. 3rd, 7 degrees below zero at 7 a. m., Feb. 4th 23 degrees above zero at 7 a. m., Feb. 5th 20 degrees above zero at 7 a. m., Feb. 6th, 4 degrees below zero at 7 a. m., Feb. 7th 4 degrees above zero at 7 a. m., Feb. 8th 10 degrees above zero at 7 a. m., Feb. 9th 26 degrees above zero at 7 a. m., Feb. 10th zero at 7 a. m., Feb. 11th 11 degrees below zero at 6 a. m., Feb. 12th 8 degrees above zero at 7 a. m., Feb. 13th 4 degrees above zero at 7 a. m., Feb. 14th zero at 7 a. m., Feb. 15th 9 degrees above zero at 7 a. m., Feb. 16th 19 degrees above zero at 7 a. m., Feb. 26th 25 degrees above zero at 7 a. m., Feb. 27th 14 degrees above zero at 7 a. m., Feb. 28th 4 degrees above zero at 7 p. m., March 1st 18 degrees above zero at 7 a. m., March 5th 20 degrees above zero at 7 a. m., March 13th 21 degrees above zero at 7 a. m., March 14th 25 degrees above zero at 7 a. m., March 15th 22 degrees above zero at 7 a. m., March 16th 21 degrees above zero at 7 a. m., March 17th, 18 degrees above zero, at 7 a. m., March 18th 16 degrees above zero at 7 a. m., March 19th 12 degrees above zero at 7 a. m., March 20th 6 degrees above zero at 7 a. m., 18 degrees above at 6 p. m., March 21st 14 degrees above zero at 7 a. m., March 22nd 18 degrees above zero at 7 a. m., March 23rd 6 degrees above zero at 7 a. m., March 24th 8 degrees above zero at 7 a. m., 18 degrees above at 6 p. m., March 25th 20 degrees above zero at 7 a. m., April 23rd 34 degrees above zero at 7 p. m., one-half inch of snow in upper end of the county, ice formed three eighths of an inch in thickness.

In keeping this record of the weather, we take only the degrees of temperature of the warmest and the coldest weather of the winter, this accounts for missing dates, on which the weather was mild.

During the winter, we had 15 snows; The first snow of the winter, fell on Dec. 15th, 1 inch in depth, second snow Dec. 31st, third snow Jan. 8th 4 inches in depth, fourth snow Jan. 14th 1 inch in depth, fifth snow Feb. 1st, sixth snow Feb. 5th, seventh snow Feb. 8th, 8 inches in depth, eighth snow Feb. 18th 1 inch in depth, ninth snow Feb. 18th 1 inch in depth, tenth snow Feb. 27th 1 inch in depth, eleventh snow March 10th, twelfth snow March 18th, 14th and 15th 18 inches in depth, thirteenth snow March 19th 8 inches in depth, fourteenth snow, March 24th, fifteenth snow March 31st.

The snows of which the depth is not given were light, only sufficient to cover the ground, during the winter we had a total of 38 inches of snow, an average of about 2 1-2 inches for each snow. During the month of March we had the most snow 21 inches and on March 15th we had the worst blizzard of the winter. Feb. was the coldest month, the only month in which ice was gathered from 6 to 10 inches in thickness. During the winter we had only five days of sleighing, while during the preceding winter we had eight weeks of good sleighing.

DELIGHTFUL MEMORIES

OF EARLY DAYS AND EVENTS IN GETTYSBURG.

Compiler Centennial Number Awakened Memories of Old Times—
McClellan Balloon Ascention.

The Centennial number of the COMPILER called forth the following letter from the oldest native born of Gettysburg, Alexander McClellan of Springfield, Mass. Speaking of the old time article in that issue he says: "I read your letter twice and my memory of the old times was refreshed."

"I witnessed the balloon ascention just around the corner of McClellan's tavern on Carlisle street. When Wise was about to step into the basket John McClellan offered him fifty dollars if he would permit him to ascend. Wise, with a broad smile, told him to get into the basket. The man in charge of the ropes allowed the balloon to carry him about as high as the second story of the house when Wise said, 'Pull him down, I'm in a hurry to be off.' McClellan exclaimed, 'No, I have paid for my ride,' and he cut the ropes. The basket struck the edge of the roof, or the chimney, and away went McClellan up, up and on out of sight. Of course there was great consternation in the town. The representatives of, perhaps, all the families were in that crowd and the McClellan family were very much alarmed. They mounted their horses and all being good riders raced in the direction of York where they found John with a sprained ankle. He said that when he thought he had traveled far enough he looked about for something to do, saw a rope hanging from the balloon and pulled it so hard he broke off the valve. Gas escaped so rapidly as to bring the balloon down in a hurry, fortunately in a favorable place and safely. Here ended the first lesson."

"I well remember Robert Sheads. When we were boys he brought a waiter, covered with sugar shaped sticks of molasses candy to the Withers corner. One day a man asked Bob what he would take for all the candy on his waiter. Bob counted the sticks and named the sum. The man gave the under side of the waiter a kick which scattered the candy over the pavement. Of course he paid and Bob went home for more."

When incident was recalled to Mr. Sheads he laughed heartily, saying he remembered the occasion and that the man who did the kicking and paid for it was John McClellan.

"And now for my age. I was born some where in Gettysburg on the 15th of November, 1821."

"It is a mistake in regard to my supposed clerkship in Mr. Arnold's store. I settled that matter long ago. I was never in Mr. Arnold's store but once when I heard a German woman ask the clerk how he sold his 'li penny calico.'"

"I was the boy in Samuel Withers' store, under Hugh Scott. I earned enough to keep our family in sugar house molasses. By the way, I forgot to mention that I kept the books. I expected Withers would go to sticks any time. He neglected his business, would often go off shooting. One winter he kept a flock of partridges in a room over his store. Oftentimes Hugh Scott would borrow money to meet notes at the bank and then borrow of some one else to pay the first lender. Poor Hugh was in hot water all the time trying to keep the store running. He had a dog named Brandy. He was in the habit of washing him in the pump trough on Baltimore street. It made Brandy very angry so that Hugh had to run to the store with Brandy at his heels and shut the door on him till he forgot his dipping."

"I sat on the same bench with Drs.

Stoever and Mullenberg in the old academy, the preparatory department of Pennsylvania College. Our instructors were Prof. Jacobs, Mr. Reynolds, Mr. Heisley and a Frenchman, Monsieur Frederick, who boarded with Miss Nancy Miller. They said that he was very fond of sauer kraut and when that article of diet made itself known on the table and his turn came to say grace he closed in the usual way, but in the same breath said, 'Mr. Heisley give me some sauer kraut.'"

"I am sure that I have been sufficiently reminiscent. It is dangerous to get an old man started along that line and you must thank yourself and your late letter for reviving the strain."

A SOUTHERN MONUMENT

To Shock the Eternal Fitness of Things.

The COMPILER is in receipt of the following communication.

In a letter received from Fitzgerald, Ga. from a lady of the G. A. R. I received an article copied from the Atlanta Constitution of Dec. 20th. It was headed:

Wirz monument endorsed, Atlanta Camp United Confederate Veterans adopts stirring resolutions on the subject. Then followed:

"At the regular monthly meeting of Atlanta Camp No 159, United Confederate Veterans, the following interesting and stirring resolutions presented by the Committee named, relating to the movement to erect a monument to Captain Henry Wirz, commander of Andersonville prison during the war, who was hanged by the Federals was unanimously passed.

"Whereas, we have ever regarded his execution by the frenzied fanatics who were in control of the Federal Government at that time, as an act of savage vindictiveness; and whereas we feel that the erection of a monument to his memory will be a just tribute to a faithful, patriotic, Confederate officer, an innocent victim of misrepresentation, perjury and fiendish malignity to a martyr who suffered death in preference to bearing false testimony against President Jefferson Davis; such a monument will for all ages to come, serve as a fitting rebuke to such as would, in the hour of triumph insult civilization by acts of cruelty. Resolved that we heartily endorse this movement by our heroic women constituting the Georgia Daughters of the Confederacy, and pledge them our active aid and financial support. We suggest that the proposed monument be placed in a conspicuous place, near the Railroad Station at Andersonville Ga."

It may not stir you, as one, who has so lately been privileged to visit Andersonville, where so many of our Pennsylvania boys lost their lives and lie buried far from their homes and having seen the cemetery which is kept just as perfectly as our own by our government. I could wish no such desecration could come so near this sacred spot. And to the boys who suffered in this prison pen, for boys we still must call them, who still are living in our town and country around us, I know this article will come to stir afresh the memories of their cruel treatment under this man Wirz and to them this article will be read with interest.

Such a monument must shock the eternal fitness of things.

Cleanliness, comfort and health renewed by the use of Cream Balm. Sold by all druggists for 50 cents, or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren street, New York.

The Fall of the Hennins.

The hennins or headresses worn by ladies of the fifteenth century were in shape of horns and so long that a woman's face appeared to be in the center of her figure. The clergy condemned them and threatened the wearers with perdition, but for all that they were worn higher than ever. At last a strolling evangelist at Paris promised absolution to all who would destroy the hennins, and the mob went to work and wrecked the headresses whenever they appeared in public. The hennins were trampled under foot and their wearers insulted all over Paris. Scores of lives were lost in the efforts of the cavaliers to defend the hennins from the rabble, but in vain, and the enormous headresses disappeared, some other feminine absurdity taking their place.

Boiled Puddings.

When making any sort of boiled pudding the over the basin grease proof paper, such as the grocer wraps the butter in. Roll in the usual manner, but take care that the water does not come up to the top of the basin. This plan saves trouble, for each pudding has a fresh paper and the washing of pudding cloths is done away with.

Separate the Nests.

If you make your nests in rows, side by side, have a solid partition between nests, for a sitting hen will steal every egg in reach of her and have her nest so full of her own eggs and the stolen ones that it will be impossible to cover them.

Success With Poultry.

Neither breed nor location nor capital invested nor more hard work alone brings success in the poultry business. They must be combined with each other and with pure common sense.

The Understrapper

(Original.)

The editorial staff of the Pacific Magazine consisted of, first, the editor and proprietor, Edward Farnham, capitalist and litterateur; two readers and a young man named Arthur Otis, who did odd jobs in the "making up" that were not considered of sufficient importance to take up the time of the others. The last named was the first of the lot to take a wife and was struggling along on a starvation salary. He was a quick, inoffensive young fellow and not considered of sufficient talents to make his way to a better position.

One day Mr. Farnham laid a manuscript novel on Otis' desk and said: "There's a novel by Donald Fox. I want you to go over it and get it ready for the printer." Mr. Farnham usually gave his orders, to Otis especially, without comment, but today he was very much pleased and added: "We must begin that in May. I've been keeping a place for it. Anything by Fox will increase the circulation 50 per cent. It ought to. It cost 10 cents a word for the serial right alone. This is the best thing, in my judgment, he's ever done; a new departure; not a bit in his usual style."

Otis never made a reply to anything the head of the concern said. He took the manuscript and began to work upon it immediately. The next day he took it to his chief and pointed out what he considered a defect, suggesting that it be referred back to the author to be changed. Mr. Farnham scowled, examined the pages referred to and told Otis that he was not employed to tell eminent writers how to write novels. Otis pocketed the snub and meeked back to his desk.

When Otis had concluded his work he laid the manuscript on Mr. Farnham's desk and remarked:

"I see, sir, that the work is not finished."

"Mr. Fox has promised to have it all in by the required time. We shall not be delayed."

"But, sir," said the clerk, as a shade of anxiety passed over his face, "don't you fear that if anything should happen to Mr. Fox?"

"Well," said manager in icy tones. "Could any one else finish it?"

"No, but I'm going to take the risk."

In due time the story appeared, and its reception was far beyond what the manager had looked for. The criticisms were fine, all critics noting the new departure of the author. It suggested the case of "The Cloister and the Hearth" by Charles Reade, which is unlike any of its author's other works. Mr. Farnham was jubilant.

One day when the story had been running six months Otis noticed a gentleman, who, he was told, was the celebrated Donald Fox, talking with the manager. After the visitor had gone Mr. Farnham brought a package to Otis' desk.

"The closing chapters of Fox's great novel," he said. "Prepare them for issue."

The next morning Otis stood by his chief's desk waiting permission to speak.

"Well?" said the manager.

"Have you read these chapters of Mr. Fox's novel?"

"No."

"They are entirely unlike the rest. The public will not believe Mr. Fox wrote them. They are very abrupt."

It was on the chief's tongue to tell his subordinate to attend to his own business, but the last words changed the impulse. Since the author was to be paid 10 cents a word for the work, it would not be to his interest to close it abruptly.

"Leave it," said the chief.

For the next few days Otis sat at his desk surrounded by a cyclone. From what he overheard he judged that Fox had confessed that he had hired a literary man who had done some good work to write the story at 5 cents a word. The author had been taken ill and died when the work was about two-thirds finished. Fox had hurriedly written the last chapters himself.

As soon as he gathered this information Otis walked humbly to the chief's desk.

"Would you like, sir, Mr. Fox's novel continued in the same vein as the earlier chapters?"

"Like it? We're in the biggest hole!"—He stopped short. He remembered that Otis had warned him of this very possibility.

"Was there any understanding with Mr. Fox as to the length of the story?" asked Otis.

Farnham looked at the young man with amazement. None of his employees had ever dared ask him about the terms of his contracts before.

"He knows your business?"

"Yes, sir. But—"

"Well do it, and let other people's business alone."

"I've understood that Mr. Fox was to get 10 cents a word and that he suited the work for 5 cents a word, but I don't know how long the story was to be."

"Well, sir, why should you know?"

"Because—the fact is, Mr. Farnham, I'm interested."

"Interested? You impudent! You see, Mr. Farnham, Mr. Fox got 10 cents a word and suited it to Andy Nichols at 5 cents. Nichols suited it to me at 2 cents a word. That's pretty poor pay, you know, but if I'm to be permitted to sting it out I can make a good thing after all."

There was a dead silence in the editorial rooms for thirty seconds. Then the chief said:

"Run it to suit yourself at 10 cents a word."

And that's how Arthur Otis got his start in literature.

When suffering daily torture from backache, rheumatic pain, Any ail of kidneys or bladder, Turn to Doan's Kidney Pills. A cure endorsed by thousands. Read an old man's tribute.

Sidney Justus, fruit dealer, of Mentor, Ohio, says: "I was cured by Doan's Kidney Pills of a severe case of kidney trouble of eight or ten years' standing. I suffered the most severe backache and other pains in the region of the kidneys. These were especially severe when stooping to lift anything, and often I could hardly straighten my back. The aching was bad in the daytime, but just as bad at night, and I was always lame in the morning. I was bothered with rheumatic pains and dropsical swelling of the feet. The urinary passages were painful, and the secretions were discolored and so free that often I had to rise at night. I felt tired all day. Half a box served to relieve me, and three boxes effected a permanent cure."

SIDNEY JUSTUS.

"A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Justus will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price, fifty cents per box."

Another Accident.

John F. Sharrets, ex-County Commissioner, of Barlow has been most unfortunate in being the victim of another accident. He went to Mt. Joy Church, of which he is sexton, early on last Sunday morning to open it for Sunday School. He got up on a chair to unlatch window and putting some weight on leg that was recently injured by kick of a horse, the leg gave away, throwing him forward. One arm went through the window and he cut an ugly gash in arm near elbow which took seven stitches to close. He cut an artery and ligaments of three fingers. Without assistance he went to a near neighbor holding his arm and they bound it until Dr. H. L. Diehl was sent for, who gave necessary attention.

Regimental Reunion.

The Regimental Reunion of the 3rd Division 9th Corp of Army of the Potomac will take place at Harrisburg on May 24. The regiments taking part in the reunion are 204, 205, 207, 208th, 209th, and 211. The 205th was largely from Adams county, as well as a company of the 204th.

THIEF STEALS A BLOWER.

Vinegar Branch and Stone Jug.
May 14.—A heavy-weight thief recently stole the blower out of Ambrose Tate's blacksmith shop in Hunters-town. It is but a few years since Mr. Tate's tire shrinker was stolen out of the same shop.

Our farmers have been as busy as bees for some weeks past, the weather being fine for sowing oats and getting ready to plant corn. The grain and grass fields present a fine appearance.

We had a heavy frost on last Thursday and Friday mornings. The ground was somewhat frozen. It is said the strawberry blossoms were killed.

Miss Minnie Sowers, who had been seriously ill, is now improving.

Irwin Null of Myers District, Md., visited friends in this place last week.

Mrs. Sheriff Colestock of Gettysburg, visited Mrs. Catharine Tate of this place last week.

The man with the straw hat suddenly disappeared last week and the man with the overcoat came in his place.

Letter to Calvin Gilbert Sr.

Gettysburg, Pa.

Dear Sir: You understand grinding wheat, buckwheat, rye, oats and corn. We understand grinding white-lead and white-zinc. The two sorts of grinding are not much alike. Very likely oats and wheat behave very differently in the mill, and you manage them differently—we know very little about your work; don't need to; we'd rather depend on you.

But we paint your house and mill, and out-buildings; perhaps you'd be glad to know about grinding paint; for some people mix their paint with stick in a tub.

We use lead- and -zinc—nothing else. And our zinc is as tough as your oats. Tub mixers imagine they mix it. They don't; they can't. Takes grinding to mix lead-and-zinc.

They are both white; when are they thoroughly mixed? Tub-mixers don't know it; but tub-mixed lead-and-zinc is a streak of one alongside of a streak of the other.

We grind as you grind; and our paint is lead-and-zinc ground together, mixed intimately; it is neither lead nor zinc, but lead and zinc; the lead is lost, and the zinc is lost; each lost in the other; both lost in the mixture. Lead chalks and zinc peels; lead-and-zinc ground together hang on and protect each other.

We take care of your mill outside; you take care of it inside.

Yours truly

Millinery Goes up in Flames.

A lamp exploded last week in the millinery store of Mrs. H. F. Smith in York Springs and set fire to a lot of hat trimmings and other inflammable millinery goods. Several men rushed in the store, carried out burning stock and after a few minutes fire fight put out the flames. The building at one point was in great danger. Contents were insured and Mrs. Smith was compelled to go to city for a new stock of millinery.

NATIONAL CEMETERY LODGE

We are in receipt of a letter from Brigadier-General Charles F. Humphrey, Quartermaster-General U. S. Army in which he says he noted the article in our last issue headed "A Crying Shame," and adds that "In this connection I desire to advise you that I have tried for three years to secure an appropriation to build a new lodge at the Gettysburg National Cemetery and this year I again estimated for $10,000 for this purpose, which amount I urged in my hearings before the Committee on Appropriations be given, or if that could not be done at least $5,000 be appropriated for putting in proper condition and adding to the existing lodge." We are pleased to know that the neglect of the lodge at the cemetery does not lie at the door of the Department having the care of National Cemeteries. It is due to the Appropriation Committee and to Congress to remember that National Cemeteries belong to the National Government, and that their entire care devolves upon the government. This great government neglects today the spot where Lincoln made the appeal that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to the cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion. Extreme sensitive care should be taken by Congress so as to speak to the people of an increased devotion. A patching up of the present lodge is not what is needed. The Quartermaster-General should be given an appropriation to provide for a new simple, chaste lodge in keeping with the surroundings.

We congratulate the New Oxford item on its enlarged and improved appearance last week, coming out a 3 column 16 page paper printed by an improved power cylinder press, which makes a cleaner impression and makes more readable matter.

All Humors

Are repairs matters which the skin, liver, kidneys and other organs can do for care of without help, there is a accumulation of them. They litter the whole system. Pimples, boils, eczema and other eruptions, loss of appetite, that tired face, bilious turns, fits of indigestion, dull headaches and many other troubles are due to them.

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills

Remove all humors, overcome all their effects, strengthen, tone and invigorate the whole system.

"I had salt rheum on my hands so that I could not work. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and it drove out the humor. I continued its use till the sores disappeared." Mrs. J. A. O. Brown, Rumford Falls, Me.

Hood's Sarsaparilla promises to cure and keeps the promise.

L. M. Buehler's New Departure.

After two months of remarkable sales, L. M. Buehler the enterprising druggist, says that his plan of selling at half price the regular 50 cent size of Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia, and guaranteeing to refund the money if it does not cure, has been the greatest success he has ever known.

He has sold hundreds of bottles of the specific and as yet has not had one returned, although he stands ready at any time to refund the money should any customer be dissatisfied. This is the strongest testimony that can be furnished to the great merit of this medicine.

Anyone suffering with dyspepsia, constipation, liver trouble, headaches, dizziness, coated tongue, or the general tired feeling caused by inactive liver and bowels or disordered digestion, should take advantage of L. M. Buehler's new departure and buy a bottle of Dr. Howard's specific at half price, with his personal guarantee to refund if it does not cure.

SNOW SQUALS IN MOUNTAIN.

Oliver B. Lightner is suffering from an injury to several of his ribs, having been hurt sometime ago by his horses running off and throwing him out of the wagon while at work on his farm.

Miss Cora Cover of Florida is visiting relatives here and expects to go to Oklahoma soon.

potatoes from 10 to 20 acres every year and work it from three to five times. Would not trade for some of the new ones that my neighbors have and half the price of theirs to boot. Can set mine any depth I would desire it to run. Very much pleased with the machine."

OLD ROMAN WAYS.

Beauty Baths, Perfumes, Toilets and Cruelty of the Women.

Women of ancient, luxurious Rome used to eat parsley as a mouth cleanser. Honey larded in wine and mixed was also a sweetener of the breath, and pastils of myrtle were employed for the same purpose. Silver tongues and knives were employed in caring for the nails. No woman of social eminence cut her own finger nails. Those who had not skilled slaves employed barbers. Perfection in these respects was one of the thirty beauties attributed to Helen of Troy. Great pains were bestowed on the feet, for it was considered that the breeding was betrayed by them as easily as by the hands. They were always much in evidence, the sandals worn not hiding them. Long, tapering fingers were highly prized. Various kinds of herb decorations were employed to beautify the fingers. Pliny gives recipes for removing any undesired substances from the nails.

Asses' milk contributed to the whiteness of the women's skin. It was sometimes poured into the bath and the whole body laved in it, and sometimes the hands and face were sponged with it from a silver basin, the soft linen towel completing the process. The hair was delicately scented, and all kinds of washes and liniments were applied to it. It took many slaves to bring the tresses into the classic bands or high pyramids which were the fashion at various times. Perfumes were not only applied to hair, hands, clothes and the person generally, but pervaded the rooms, which were hung with garlands and decorated with blooms of many kinds. The dresses of Roman matrons were made brilliant with various processes of pressing and smoothing, machines being employed for the purpose. Though most refined in the duties of the toilet, the women of that day were barbaric in their cruelty. Woe be to the poor slave who failed to follow her mistress' command. She was whipped by the public flagellator if she did not fall a prey to the personal fury of her mistress, who would hurl at her victim the mirror or anything else at hand and would not disdain to pierce her tender flesh with the long, ever ready hairpin if nails, teeth and hands were not sufficient.—Chicago News.

FIRE AND AIR.

The Ancients Recognized the Intimate Relations Between Them.

The intimate relation between fire and air was early recognized, seeing that experience soon taught that air was necessary for fire. The experiment of burning a candle in a closed vessel, now so familiar to every school-boy, is a very old one, and the influence of a blast of air on a furnace had been probably noticed from a very remote period. By some it was affirmed to be the food of fire, while by others the same belief was embodied in the phrase, "Air nourishes fire."

Again, it was long ago observed that niter, a substance well known to the chemical philosophers of the past, could produce intense ignition. It was hence inferred that, since niter possessed this property, it necessarily followed that the two substances resembled each other in composition. According to Robert Boyle, the air contained "volatile niter," while Lord Bacon held that air contained a "volatile, crude and windy spirit" and thunder and lightning were supposed to be due to the presence of minute particles of this niter diffused through air.

The important bearing of such observations is due to the fact that oxygen gas, which is one of the chief constituents of air and the one to which it owes its power of supporting combustion, also forms the largest elementary constituent of niter and is likewise the source of the power possessed by that body of supporting combustion.

The action of heat on metals in causing them to lose their metallic luster had also not escaped notice, and Cardan, a philosopher who lived during the sixteenth century, in noticing the increase in weight that lead undergoes when heated in air, attributed it to the gas in the air, which feeds flame and which rekindles a body presenting an ignited point.

A Cautious Scot.

A Scotsman went to an English race meeting and boldly started a sovereign. Strangely enough, the horse he backed proved a winner, and he went to the "bookie" to claim his winnings. The sporting man begrudgingly handed him 5 sovereigns. He looked at each one very carefully before placing it in his pocketbook. "Well," said the "bookie," with a snarl, "are you afraid they're bad?"

"Oh, no," said the Scotsman, "but I was just lookin' to make sure the bad gin I gie'd ye wisna among them!"

Queen Quality

GUN METAL

OF the many popular Spring leathers, Gun Metal has, perhaps, scored the most pronounced success for women's wear. Who could withstand the fascinations of the many "Queen Quality" Oxfords we show in this beautiful leather? How brilliantly they polish! How soft and pliable they are, and how luxuriously comfortable! We illustrate one of the most popular styles, yet no illustration can begin to do justice to the original.

Let us prove it.
